

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to ubiquitous/universal processes for establishing cells capable of stable high yield expression of a recombinant gene with human glycosylation pattern, and for establishing stable universal precursor cells available for insertion of arbitrary target genes. The invention further relates to cells obtainable by said processes